

QUARTERLY REPORT

THIRD
2022
QUARTER

ABOUT US

Cultural heritage is fundamental to sustainable development and human well-being. Yet, it needs care, protection and effective management. Those entrusted with conserving heritage need tools and support to ensure they can do their job to the best of their abilities.

ICCROM is an intergovernmental organization working in service to its Member States to promote the conservation of all forms of cultural heritage, in every region of the world. ICCROM is where communities, heritage professionals and governments come together to innovate and advance knowledge. Our strength lies in shifting viewpoints and creating heritage leaders for the future.

WE CURRENTLY DO THIS THROUGH THREE STRATEGIC DIRECTIONS (SDs), AND RESPECTIVE OBJECTIVES:

SD1	FOCUSING ON WORLD CONCERNS FOR CULTURAL HERITAGE	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 1.1 Protect cultural heritage in times of crisis 1.2 Support Africa's cultural heritage 1.3 Foster emerging issues of heritage and conservation
SD2	CREATING A DIVERSE AND INCLUSIVE GLOBAL NETWORK	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 2.1 Lead and innovate capacity building at all levels 2.2 Enhance community engagement in protecting heritage 2.3 Strengthen awareness about heritage and conservation
SD3	STRENGTHENING AND TRANSFORMING ICCROM	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 3.1 Strengthen the foundations of ICCROM 3.2 Increase the impacts of service delivery and visibility 3.3 Modernize and invest for effectiveness and efficiency

AND THROUGH OUR COMMITMENT TO THE UN 2030 SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT GOALS:

FROM THE DIRECTOR-GENERAL

I'm pleased to introduce the third Quarterly Report of 2022, which gives an overview of our progress from July to September. It tracks the indicators proposed in the Programme of Activities and Budget 2022-23, presenting key facts and figures from the reporting period.

ICCROM aligns itself with generating new concepts and ideas and sharing knowledge while remaining grounded in practical fieldwork.

Regarding our mission to preserve and protect cultural heritage, some things will never change: we will always offer reliable, on-the-ground assistance to heritage in need. This has been proven with our emergency mission to Ukraine in July this year. Alongside our partners ICOMOS and ALIPH, we sent staff to assess the damage caused to cultural heritage, identify immediate needs and offer technical assistance.

Unfortunately, this was not the only disaster requiring our help this quarter. As Pakistan faces devastating floods, we are doing what we can to help its cultural heritage by offering post-event damage and risk assessments.

Even in non-emergency situations, cultural heritage requires constant care and protection. This summer, participants of our MOSAIKON initiative – a 14-year project with the Getty Conservation Institute – implemented strategic and sustainable approaches to conserving archaeological sites in the Mediterranean region.

ICCROM is involved in numerous capacity-building and educational ventures; some from this quarter include the People Nature Culture course \(PNC22\) held in the Republic of Korea in August, an international summer school on Communication and Teaching Skills in Conservation and Science in Alberta, Canada, and a World Heritage Leadership workshop in Bahrain.

In addition to our ongoing training activities, we are entering new territory with our forward-thinking initiatives and projects.

We stepped into digital heritage conservation with the July launch of the new Sustaining Digital Heritage programme. We're also staying current with trends in the field with our Strategic Planning Unit's coordination of research into valuing cultural capital. In September, we welcomed experts to ICCROM headquarters to debate this timely topic, and we launched a survey for ICCROM Member States to learn more about accounting for the impacts of cultural heritage at the national level.

It was also an eventful quarter for strengthening our partnerships. We are honoured that the Norwegian Ministry of Climate and Environment extended its support of the World Heritage Leadership \(WHL\) Programme, as announced at the WHL Forum held from 21 to 22 September in Norway. We extend our deep gratitude to Norway for recognizing the pressing need to continue developing present and future generations' capacity to care for our precious World Heritage.

We are also extremely pleased to have recently participated in the Fourth International Conference for Euro-African Academic Partnerships during the annual Forum of Gran Sasso. We are thankful to our partners in this initiative: the University of Teramo, the Diocese of Teramo-Atri, the Directorate General for Development Cooperation of the Italian Ministry of Foreign Affairs and International Cooperation, and UNIDROIT. This conference gave us the opportunity to bring together education actors and youth from a variety of sectors in Europe and Africa to establish a roadmap for better cooperation between the two continents.

We have been busy preparing for Council 97. We have met with several stakeholders in the lead-up to the annual gathering, including the Financial and Advisory Committee (FAC). I look forward to meeting Council Members – virtually or in person – next quarter.

I take this opportunity to remember the legacy of Cevat Erder – a former ICCROM Director-General (1981-1988) and a prominent figure in the field – who passed in September. ICCROM sends its heartfelt condolences to his family and friends around the world.

Webber Ndoro, Director-General of ICCROM
